Like all children, children in immigrant families benefit when they have access to programs and services that promote their development. We encourage all eligible families to continue participating in WIC services - WIC is NOT impacted by the expanded public charge rule, and health and nutrition services received by children will not be counted against their parents. Access to food and healthcare are critical to building a brighter future and a stronger community. We want to assure the immigrant families in our WIC communities that WIC IS NOT included in the expanded public charge rule, and that programs used by children are not considered. We hope you will stick with WIC, and continue to get your children the healthcare and nutrition they need. #ProtectImmigrantFamilies

At WIC, we know that receiving nutritious food is an important step on the path to healthy, fulfilled and productive adulthood. We want to help breakdown the fear and continue to focus on serving ALL families. WIC is NOT INCLUDED in the public charge rule expansion, and immigrant families can and should still count on us. As part of our commitment to #protectimmigrantfamilies we want to make it clear- WIC is NOT included in the public charge rule, and the rule DOES NOT penalize an applicant for benefits received by their children under age 21. Do not dis-enroll your children from services like WIC, Medi-Cal or SNAP. Pregnant women will also not be penalized for using the Medicaid for Pregnant Women Program. If you are uncertain if your residency could be impacted by receipt of benefits, please seek out guidance from local-nonprofits or immigration attorneys before terminating services you need. <https://www.immigrationlawhelp.org/>
